Singaporean aquaculture enterprise Barramundi Asia has scaled up its operations with a new SGD 2 million ($1.48m) extension to its nursery, reports Straights Times.

With this extension, the farm expects to increase its fish production threefold to almost 1.8 million fish fry a year. That will bring its expected yield to 6,000 metric tons of fish yearly; greater than Singapore's entire aquaculture production in 2018.

The nursery, located in the south of Singapore on Pulau Semakau, now has 1,200 square meters more space, as well as eight new 50 cubic meter tanks.

It is now the state's largest recirculating aquaculture system. It has also expanded its hatchery, which should allow the farm to be fully self-sufficient from production to distribution.
